This teaser profile illustration is about all that The Italian Sea Group is revealing for now about a motoryacht it recently signed.

“About all” is really about all, in fact. The yard has revealed scant details. It says the megayacht is part of its Admiral brand of motoryachts. And, LOA is 207 feet (63 meters). But, that’s pretty much it. The interior configuration for this 63-meter Admiral is being kept confidential. The same is true of the propulsion package and intended performance.

The few details being divulged: The 63-meter Admiral is marked for delivery in 2019. She’s being built to Lloyds classification. The owner is reportedly quite experienced, too, having enjoyed megayachts for two decades. Not surprising, according to The Italian Sea Group, this 63-meter Admiral was a yearlong design and development project. And, finally, Superyacht Technical Services, SuperYachtsMonaco (which introduced the buyer), and the owner’s own consultants are overseeing the build with The Italian Sea Group’s own in-house project-management team.

In related Admiral news, three motoryachts are launching this year for the brand. They range in size from 125 feet (38 meters) to 180 feet (55 meters).
